
Humanistic Mathematics Network Journal #21

December 1999

From the Editor

Anneli Lax: In Memoriam	1	Calculus for the Liberal Arts: A Humanistic Approach	28
Elena Marchisotto		Kathleen Shannon
Teaching a Humanities Course: A Mathematician's View	2	"Ode to Mathematics"	33
Bill Marion		Sandra Z. Keith
"Word Problems"	6	Divisibility: A Problem Solving Approach Through Generalizing and Specializing	34
Don Pfaff		Rina Zazkis
A Response to Dancis	7	Excerpts from Ivan's Commandments to Himself	38
Margaret Schaffer		Ivan Niven
What Else Do We Forget to Tell Our Teachers?: A Response to Dancis	8	The Role of Values in Mathematics Education	39
Stephen Sproule		Murad Jurdak
Another Response to Dancis	10	Book Review: A Tour of the Calculus by David Berlinski	46
Ted Eisenberg		Bernard Fleishman
Evaluation in the Mathematics Classroom	11	Book Review: Mathematical Reflections by Peter Hilton, Derek Holton and Jean Pedersen	47
E. Hoosain		Ladnor Geissinger
B. Naraine		Tea Tasting and Pascal Triangles	48
What Is the Thing Called "Humanistic Mathematics?"	14	Paul Alper
Tamar Apel		Yongzhi Yang
Mathematics is an Art: The Story of a One-Time Course	18	"Roots"	52
Paul Fjelstad		Don Pfaff
A Reflection on the Word Remembering the Word "Word" is Reflexive	27	Letters and Comments In Future Issues...
Paul Fjelstad
Ivan Ginchev			